These were derived from expressed sequence tags (ESTs) from the organism of interest. Its amino acid sequence shows a high proline content, but there is no homology to any known proline-rich antigens of mycobacteria. Movel M. tuberculosis proteins (see AAM31851-57) are claimed. These can be produced as recombinant proteins, especially in bacterial, yeast, fungal or higher eukaryote host cells, and used for disgnosing tuberculosis and other mycobacterial infections in humans or animals. The claimed proteins can also be used for epidemiological studies, for monitoring vaccination, and for the development of vaccines and antipotents.

Claim 32; Fig 6A-R; 308pp; English

identification of genes responsive to a specific mechanical stress. The method comprises applying the mechanical stress to an organism (tissue or cells comprising bone cells), isolating the specific cellular fractions and extracting mRNA from them, and differentially analysing the mRNA in comparison with control samples. The method is used to identify genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified genes are employed in determining risk associated with a physiological or disease state. The risk determination methods are used for testing a madicament for contributions. after subjecting rat osteoblasts to mechanical stress. Expression of the 608 gene was found to be upregulated by about 3-fold in cells subjected to mechanical strain who expression of the following the subjected to mechanical strain who expectations in the method of the invention after the subjected to mechanical strain who expectations in the method of the invention after the subject to mechanical strain who expectations in the method of the invention after the subject to mechanical strain who expectation in the method of the invention after the subject to mechanical strains and the subject that the subject the subject to the subject to the subject that the subject the subject that the subject the subject that the The present sequence is obtained from a clustral X alignment with protein 608. Protein 608 was identified using the method of the in to mechanical strain. The specification describes a method for the controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or bone density or other factors causing or contributing to osteoporosis or its symptoms or other conditions involved in mechanical stress of its medicament for gene therapy. These medicaments, or genes identified the method of the invention, are used for treating, preventing or symptoms or other The methods can also be used for advancing research or osteoporosis or studies γď

Its mainto acid sequence shows a high proline content, but there is no homology to any known proline-rich antigens of mycobacteria. Novel M. tuberculosis proteins (see AAM31851-57) are claimed. These can be produced as recombinant proteins, especially in bacterial, yeast, fungal or higher eukaryote host cells, and used for diagnosing tuberculosis and other mycobacterial infections in humans or animals. The claimed proteins can also be used for epidemiological studies, for monitoring vaccination, and for the development of vaccines and anti-mycobacterial drugs.

CACP protein (MSF) acts as a synovium lubricant, and can be used to lubricate tissue and joints in the treatment of osteoarthritis. The composition may be applied to reduce the symptoms of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, loss of range of movement or joint damage). The present sequence is a peptide encoded by such probe. The probes are useful for measuring human gene expression a human breast sample, where the probe hybridises at high stringency to nucleic acid expressed in the human breast. The probes are useful for nucleic acid expressed in the human breast.

Multimeric protein, especially enzymatic, complexes are held together CC by protein protein interactions between domains designated dockerins and cohesins, which are found on the catalytic and scaffold subunits CC respectively. An example of such a complex is the cellulose degrading CC protein complex from Clostridium thermocellum, known as the celluloseme. CC interact with a central "scaffold" protein designated the cellulosome cC interact with a central "scaffold" protein designated the cellulosome cC interact with the Cip subunit via conserved 23 amino acid dockerin CC domains. Cip has been shown to contain 9 copies of a cohesin domain. CC domains. Cip has been shown to contain 9 copies of a cohesin domain. CC domain is designated a type II dockerin domain found on the catalytic subunits of the cellulosome. CC domain is designated a type II dockerin domain (as compared to the type II dockerin domain (as compared to the type CI is unable to bind type I cohesin domains. CC The sequence presented here is an example of a protein which binds the novel type II dockerin domains in the N-terminal portion of the OldB gene. CC The protein contains 4 type II cohesin domains in the N-terminal contains. The novel type II dockerin and is the product of the OldB gene. CC the novel type II dockerin and is the product so the voyable to bind type II dockerin and is the protein which binds combined type II dockerin and cohesin domains can be used in commisser. Pensentally ensure commisser and cohesin domains can be used commisser.

                  (I) and (II) can be used in gene therapy and vaccine production. (I) and (II) may be used in the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of diseases associated with inappropriate colon tumour associated protein (TCAP) expression, such as colonic cancer. For example, (I) and (II) may be used to treat disorders associated with decreased expression by rectifying mutations or deletions in a patient's genome that affect the patients of TCAPs by expressing inactive proteins or to supplement the patients own production of them. Additionally, (II) may be used to produce the TCAP proteins, by inserting the nucleic acids into a host cell culturing the cell to express the protein. (II) and its polymerase chain reaction (PCR) and hybridisation assays to detect and quantitate the presence of similar nucleic acids in samples, and therefore which patients may be in need of restorative therapy. (I) may also be used as antigens in the production of antibodies against TCAPs and in assays to identify modulators of TCAP expression and activity. Anti-(I) antibodies and antagonists may also be used to down regulate TCAP expression and activity. The anti-(I) antibodies may also be used as diagnostic agents for detecting the presence of TCAPs in samples as diagnostic agents for detecting the presence of TCAPs in samples (e.g. by enzyme linked immunosorbant assay (ELISA)). AA128460 to AA1285 g. by enzyme linked immunosorbant assay (ELISA)). AAI28460 to AAI29512 AAM24494 to AAM24523 represent nucleotide and amino acid sequences the exemplification of the present invention

This sequence represents the human megakaryocytopolentin (MPO) protein. This sequence was purified using a carrier which can couple wheat germ agglutinin and heparin to separate MPO. Fragments of this sequence (see ARR0039 and AAR80049) were used to produce the amplification primers can then be used as probes to screen human cDNA libraries for MPO cDNA can then be inserted into a plasmid which is used to transform cells to produce MPO. The MPO sequence is capable of promoting colony formation of megakaryocytes, enlarging the size of megakaryocytes factor may be used for treating thrombocytopenia and hematocytopenia. The purification method can be used to isolate MPO from human urine or serums of patients with aplastic anaemia, and from animal blood or urine the pradiation exposing the animals to induce aplastic anaemia.

                                                                                            of diagnosing osteoarthritis or a predisposition to osteoarthritis by measuring the amount of MSF or its fragment in a biological sample of a mammal, wherein an increased amount of MSF compared to a control indicates the presence of or predisposition to developing it research that tribonectin and DNA encoding it are useful in the osteoarthritis. The tribonectin and DNA encoding it are useful in the reatment of osteoarthritis, where they may be used for lubricating mammalian joints, such as articulating joints of humans, dogs or horses. The tribonectin, when formulated as a membrane, foam, gel or fibre, is the interest of the second of the

The tribonectin has at least one o-linked oligosaccharide lubricating moiety and has a polypeptide sequence comprising 1-76 repeats of a motif having at least 50% identity to the sequence KEPAPTT repeats of a motif having at least 50% identity to the sequence KEPAPTT repeats of a motif having at least 50% identity to the sequence comprising a (AAB29774). The invention relates to a method of treating osteoarthritis via the Cadministration of a composition comprising the camptodactyly-arthropathy-cox vara-pericarditis (CACP) protein, or portions of the CACP protein. The composition may be administered via intra-articular or intravenous of the invention may be administered via intra-articular or intravenous confidence in the human CACP protein is identified in the invention as their gene estimulating factor (MSF). The gene encoding confidence in (MSF) is located on chromosome 1925-31, and mutations in this gene are responsible for the heritable disorder camptodactyly-carthropathy-coxa vara-pericarditis, in which patients have synovial contents as a synoviam lubricant, and can be used to lubricate tissue and contents in the treatment of osteoarthritis. The composition may be content in the treatment of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, contents in the treatment of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, contents in the treatment of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, contents in the treatment of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, contents in the treatment of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, contents in the sequence is not given in its entirety in figure 4 of the contents and content

The tribonectin has at least one O-linked oligosaccharide lubricating molety and has a polypeptide sequence comprising 1-76 repeats of a motif having at least 50% identity to the sequence KEPAPTT (AAB29774). The invention also relates to a nucleic acid encoding a human MSF-derived tribonectin; a biocompatible composition comprising a human tribonectin for inhibiting tissue adhesion formation; and a method of diagnosing osteoarthritis or a predisposition to osteoarthritis by cc time sequence given is a full length translation from the meghanization of stimulating factor (MSF) precursor. The sequence covered by exons II, and IV encodes megakaryocyte stimulating factor (MSF). This cc sequence is modified by the addition of an N-terminal sequence encoding cc a secretory leader, an initiating methionine proceeding exon II and a cc terminating codon following exon IV. The cDNA sequence given contains cc (meg-CSF). Exon I contains the initiating methionine, and encodes a cc classical mammalian protein secretion signal sequence. The sequence cc encoding the original meg-CSF includes exons II-IV and is thought to cc primary transcript of this gene may be cleaved in different ways to cyleid a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to cyleid a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to combinate in the stability, folding and processing of the care also implicated in the stability, folding and processing of the considerated in the processing or folding and processing of the resulting factor, ie. one or more of these exons may contain cc the resulting factor, ie. one or more of these exons may contain cc the cellular matrix or extracellular matrix processing. Both naturally occuring and non-naturally occuring was processing. Both naturally combinations of alternatively spliced exons from this sequence, with the exons spliced together in differing orders to form different contains.

                   This novel 55 kba protein is encoded by an open reading frame of a Mycobacterium tuberculosis DNA fragment (see AAT93610) containing polymorphic GC-rich sequences. Its amino acid sequence shows a high proline content, but there is no homology to any known proline-rich antigens of mycobacteria. Novel M. tuberculosis proteins (see AAM31851-57) are claimed. These can be produced as recombinant proteins, especially in bacterial, yeast, fungal or higher eukaryote host cells, and used for diagnosing tuberculosis and other mycobacteria.

An An An An An An Annalysis of the present sequence is obtained from a clustral X alignment with CC protein 608. Protein 608 was identified using the method of the invention CC after subjecting rat osteoblasts to mechanical stress. Expression of the CC 608 gene was found to be upregulated by about 3-fold in cells subjected CC identification of genes responsive to a specific mechanical stress. The CC identification of genes responsive to a specific mechanical stress. The CC identification of genes responsive to a specific cellular stress. The CC identification and extracting mRNA from them, and differentially analysing the fractions and extracting mRNA from them, and differentially analysing the CC genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified CC genes are employed in determining risk associated with a physiological or CC disease state. The risk determination methods are used for testing a CC medicament for gene therapy. These medicaments, or genes identified by the method of the invention, are used for treating preventing or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or its symptoms or other conditions involved in mechanical stress or its symptoms or other conditions involved in mechanical stress or its control. The methods can also be used for advancing research or studies in
